Thank you, [REDACTED]. This is very good news. You can count on us to provide whatever support may be reasonably necessary.

Jack,
I was just able to confer with our office's Victim-Witness Coordinator. She informed me that our office will be able to pay for [REDACTED], [REDACTED] husband, and [REDACTED] three minor children to travel with her to New York for her testimony and then back to Florida. She also confirmed that our office will be able to pay for a hotel suite that is large enough to accommodate [REDACTED], her husband, and her children.
We will reach out to coordinate the logistics closer to the trial date. For now, the trial is scheduled to begin on July 12, 2021. I'll plan to reach back out in March or April to provide you with an update on timing and to potentially schedule a time for me to meet with [REDACTED] for trial prep.
As always, please do not hesitate to contact me with any questions or concerns.
Best,
[REDACTED]

Jack,
Thank you very much for letting us know. That's great to hear, and I completely understand [REDACTED] desire to have her family with her as support when she testifies. I will work with our Victim-Witness Coordinator and with the FBI's Victim Services folks to figure out what we can do about funding for [REDACTED] family to join her in New York. I'll get back to you as soon as I have information about those logistics.

Best,

My apologies for not getting back to you following my meeting with [REDACTED] yesterday, but it took until today to get a final response from [REDACTED].

She is willing to commit to testify but she definitely wants her husband and children with her when in NY for trial in July. While she does not presently have the ability to finance her family's travel at this time, she might be willing and able to set aside funds she might receive from the Epstein Victims' Compensation Fund to at least partially defray related expenses.

Please let us know what commitment the government is able to make in this regard.

I hope your trip home went smoothly.

Hi Jack,

Any word from [REDACTED]? Apologies for pestering, but there are a number of steps we'll need to take in the near term if we are going to expand our case to include [REDACTED] testimony.

Thanks very much,

Jack,

It was a pleasure to see you in person last week. Thank you for being so accommodating and kind during my trip down to Florida.

I'm just checking in to see whether [REDACTED] has made a decision about whether she would be willing to testify at our trial. And, of course, I am happy to have a call to discuss or answer any questions if that would be useful.

Best,
