From: "█████████████████████)" <██████████████████████>
To: "████████████████████)" <██████████████████████>
Subject: FW: RE: Outlook question
Date: Sun, 11 Oct 2020 15:54:48 +0000

EMAIL TO FILE:

During the course of reviewing my emails, as described in the Epstein Transition Memo dated October 9, 2020, I moved approximately 160 non-substantive (but arguably or clearly related to the case in some fashion) emails to a separate folder in Outlook. In the process of doing so, approximately 140 of those emails were duplicated. Today, I deleted the duplicate version of those emails, taking care to ensure that one copy of each email remains in that folder, consistent with the litigation hold in this case.

- █.

From: USANYS-IT Services <██████████████████████>
Sent: Friday, October 09, 2020 19:49
To: █████████████████████) <██████████████████████>
Subject: RE: RE: Outlook question

Do not believe there is a de-dupe option.

From: █████████████████████) <██████████████████████>
Sent: Friday, October 9, 2020 7:43 PM
To: USANYS-IT Services <██████████████████████>
Subject: RE: Outlook question

Sorry for the bother, but I copied a number of emails into a new Outlook folder and it somehow appears to have doubled every single email. Is there a way to update / de-dupe that? Or do I need to individually delete every other email to get it back to normal?? Thank you!

████████████████

Assistant U.S. Attorney
Southern District of New York
████████████

EFTA00029497